

LR airport appoints new deputy director

ARKANSAS DEMOCRAT-GAZETTE

Bryan Malinowski, who has 17 years of airport management experience, will be the new deputy executive director at Little Rock National Airport, Adams Field.

Malinowski, 38, formerly acted as the airport's property, planning and development director. A search firm pared down the 17 applicants to four finalists. Ron Mathieu, who was named executive director by the Little Rock Municipal Airport Commission in June, made the selection, said T.J. Williams, the airport spokesman.

As deputy, Malinowski will be responsible for planning and construction of capital improvement projects. He has been with the airport since March. Before that, Malinowski was the airport property manager at Fort Lauderdale-Hollywood International Airport. He has also served in management positions at El Paso International Airport and Lehigh Valley International Airport in Allentown, Penn.

Malinowski will draw an annual salary of $129,848, Williams said.
