KRTV has learned that John Faulkner has been selected as the new director of the Great Falls International Airport.

The Great Falls International Airport Authority Board voted unanimously in a special meeting to offer Faulkner the position. The airport board will now draw up a contract that will be ready to sign at the board's regularly scheduled meeting next Tuesday.

The announcement comes just days after incumbent director Cynthia Schultz was relieved of her duties, following months of disagreement between Schultz and airport board members.

Faulkner has been the Assistant Aviation Director for Planning and Development at Colorado Springs Airport, Colorado Springs, Colorado, since 2006.

Faulkner started his aviation career as a consultant with a large aviation consulting firm specializing in financial feasibility analysis, financial structuring, master plans and long range planning.

He worked with a number of national and international airport clients before taking the position of Business Development Manager for the Seattle-Tacoma International Airport.

Mr. Faulkner has a Bachelors Degree in Business Administration from the University of Cincinnati. He is an Accredited Airport Executive (A.A.E.).
